

Bio for Shaunti Feldhahn, author of
The Male Factor: The Unwritten Rules, Misperceptions, and Secret Beliefs of Men in the Workplace

Shaunti Feldhahn is a popular public speaker, consultant, research analyst, media commentator, and best-selling author with 2 million copies of her books sold in 20 different languages. Shaunti holds a Master in Public Policy with a concentration in business from Harvard University, and worked on Wall Street as an analyst and on Capitol Hill before becoming a surprise bestselling author and relationship researcher. Her books on the personal relationship side about what people tend not to get about the opposite sex, have become a staple resource for many marriage counselors. This wife of attorney-entrepreneur Jeff Feldhahn and mother of two, now applies her analytical skills to the startling research of what men and women each privately think in the workplace but rarely share; perceptions that often fundamentally affect their colleagues.

Today, you can often find Shaunti and her team consulting with leadership groups and companies worldwide about the eye-opening findings of her latest book, The Male Factor: The Unwritten Rules, Misperceptions and Secret Beliefs of Men in the Workplace. This knowledge has proven to be game-changing for talented, high-potential women in the workplace as well as for men who want to cultivate positive working relationships and champion female players for advancement. Shaunti's keynotes, leadership consultation and team training sessions are based on more than ten years of research, speaking and consulting with thousands of men and women, as well as groups as diverse as the Government of Singapore, specialized women's leadership groups, and Fortune 50 household-name corporations.